Your Safety is Our Concern

At The ESCO Group, we take safety very seriously. So seriously, that we started a new division that focuses only on safety and the training of our people, as well as our clients. ESCO Safety officially started in 2003, but has been doing safety training for much longer.

In the last three years we've educated over 3,000 professionals in training courses we've developed. The operations manager for our safety division has traveled all over the country teaching these courses to many different companies.

Our safety directors are well educated in the OSHA and NFPA safety standards, and pass on their knowledge to associates and clients. Our operations manager is a member of the NFPA-70E technical committee, which is currently developing the 2009 edition of the NFPA-70E manual. Not only are we able to teach these standards, now we are involved with developing them. Passing on this knowledge brings value to our clients and helps them keep their associates safe and their plants up and running.
