St. Luke's New Entrances

April 23, 2008 As some of you may have seen on the news, St. Luke's Hospital had a ribbon cutting ceremony to celebrate the official opening of their new West Entrance and Emergency Room Entrance. ESCO Electric was deeply involved in that project and proudly finished the job last month.

The hospital now has two entrances, one for outpatient registration and one for emergency and trauma. Several floors have been built on to the West end of the hospital, in order to provide state-of-the-art testing equipment that will help promote the overall health of its patrons.

This isn't all that St. Luke's is doing. ESCO Electric is still busy at work for the hospital as they update and build on to more of their original structure. As our city grows and expands, so does St. Luke's as it strives to serve Eastern Iowa with superior healthcare.

Congratulations to ESCO Electric, Foreman Jason Umstead and John Stienbronn, and their team of excellent electricians on doing a great job at St. Luke's!
